

My Experience at Saradhanikethan Public School

My name is Kesava Viswanadha, and I am currently a sophomore at Parkway West High School in St. Louis, Missouri. I went to Saradhanikethan Public School over the summer to teach for four days during August. My experience at the workshop was great, as I was able to impart my knowledge to many of those who were less fortunate than me. I taught chemistry and biology to 7-12 graders, and many of them were eager to learn. I especially enjoyed making lesson plans and telling the students about resources that would help them even after I left. I would advise future ambassadors to be prepared to go over the basics of the topic thoroughly and to speak in Telugu (especially to the younger kids) to help them understand the material. I would also advise future ambassadors to be patient with the kids, and to be organized about creating lesson plans. If I could change anything about the experience, I would want there to be more consistent wifi and to have the kids more focused on my teachings and the lesson plan. Other than that, the experience was great.
